State Bar Continues New Laws Review

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on laws which were passed in the 1949 session of the Michigan Legislature. They affect you and every resident of Michigan. The entire series is prepared as a public service of the State Bar of Michigan under the direction of Russell A. Board, Lansing, Chairman of the State Bar Committee on Legislation and Law Reform. The articles are objective in nature and do not attempt to comment on the relative worth of the legislation on amendments, but rather to present the most important facts and alert you to the changes these laws represent as they become effective on September 23, 1949.

The amendments to the Bonine-Tripp Act represented one of the more important pieces of legislation enacted in the 1949 session of the Michigan Legislature. These were the latest amendments to the original Michigan Labor Mediation Act which sets up the state governmental machinery for settling labor disputes and maintaining labor peace.

The original Michigan Labor Mediation Act, adopted in 1939, was notable for its effectiveness. The measure had no teeth aside from penal provisions which were impractical to enforce. Under the leadership of Senator Elwood Bonine of Vandalla and Harold D. Tripp of Allegan, the 1947 Michigan Legislature rewrote most of the act in an attempt to make it effective. The 1947 version prohibited strikes in public utilities and required that such labor disputes were to be submitted to arbitration. The findings of the arbitration board were to be binding upon both parties. Last fall, when this act was reviewed by the Michigan Supreme Court, it was held to be unconstitutional due to the fact that it provided that one of the members of the arbitration board should be a Circuit Judge. The Supreme Court held that this was imposing administrative duties upon a Judge, and consequently, was unconstitutional.

As a consequence of the ruling of the Supreme Court, further amendments to the "Labor Mediation Act" became a "must" at the 1949 session of the Legislature.

In considering what amendments should be placed upon the act to make it effective and workable, both labor and management representatives in the public utility field recommended that a "fact finding panel" rather than an arbitration panel be set up. The difference between these two lies in the fact that under the arbitration panel the findings of the three-man board must be followed and were binding upon both parties, while under the fact finding panel system the findings were simply recommendations and binding upon no one, but would rely upon the force of public opinion to obtain the consent of both parties to its recommendations. Under the fact finding panel type of procedure, it is possible for a strike to take place in a public utility. However, the Legislature felt that the chances of a strike in an important public utility were rather remote because the Governor has the power to seize a strike-bound utility and keep it in operation.

The whole theory of the Labor Mediation Act as it now stands is the solving of disputes by voluntary agreement and the encouragement of negotiations for that purpose. The point was made by both labor and management that the inclusion of compulsory arbitration in the law reduced the chances of the parties reaching an agreement by negotiation, because in practically every case neither party would make its best offer before actual arbitration began. In order to encourage voluntary arbitration of such disputes, the act also outlines the mechanics to be followed in voluntary arbitration where there is no provision in the contract between the parties which determines a procedure to be followed.

Under the 1947 act, before a strike could be legally called, employees were required to vote on question whether or not they would strike. This vote would be a last resort following the failure of mediation to solve the matter under dispute. Such a vote would be by secret ballot, and in order to insure the maximum turnout for such election it was provided that the election be held upon the premises of the employer. The 1949 act as a result of the experience of that latter provision giving the state Labor Mediation Board power to determine when the election should be held, held the event that it "cannot be fairly held there (on the premises)". The Board is also authorized to adopt rules and regulations governing such elections, including provisions for absentee voting. The expense of such elections are now defrayed by the public treasury instead of the parties involved. Provision was retained for the printing upon the ballot, at the request of either party to the dispute, the employer's most recent offer of settlement.

This 1949 version of the Bonine-Tripp Act was one of several pieces of legislation passed by the 1949 legislature which was given immediate effect. As a result, it is now in operation as is evidenced by the holding of recent elections at the Ford Motor Company and the Detroit Edison Company plants. Both of these companies are engaged to a large extent in interstate commerce and the fact that these elections were held under the state act gives some indication of the role that the state Labor Mediation Board is playing in the attempts to maintain labor peace.

Workmen's Compensation Act
The final amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act as passed by the 1949 Legislature, while not as all inclusive as that recommended by Governor Williams, nevertheless substantially increases benefits payable to injured parties and to dependents of deceased employees.

Previously under the Workmen's Compensation Act, if an employee were killed under circumstances which entitled his dependents to compensation, his dependents would receive two-thirds of his weekly wage, subject to certain maximum and minimum limitations. Changes were made in these maximum and minimum amounts. Under the old act, maximum payments were graduated from $19 in the case of one dependent to a total of $27 if the deceased employee was survived by five or more dependents. Under these amendments, this maximum limitation was increased so that in case of one dependent $24 per week is paid and payments are then graduated in accordance with the total number of dependents surviving up to a maximum of $32 in the case of survival of five or more dependents. Increases were also made in the minimum amount which might be paid so that, if the employee leaves one dependent, $11 per week will be paid regardless of how small his weekly wage might have been. These minimum payments are graduated up to $19 in case of five or more dependents.

Previously there existed no provision for increasing the amount payable to a partially or totally incapacitated employee based upon the number of his dependents. Such an employee simply received two-thirds of his weekly wage up to a maximum of $21 or a minimum of $10. The 1949 amendments provided that such employees will receive a maximum of $24 per week if he has no dependents. If he has one or more dependents these payments are increased in accordance with the number of dependents to not more than $34 per week and not less than $21 per week. Similar change in the maximum limitation was also made in case of partial incapacity.

Changes were also made in the length of time employees were entitled to medical care. Previously, employees were entitled to medical care for six months with an additional six months permitted at the discretion of the Workmen's Compensation Commission. Under the new amendments, the Commission may authorize medical treatment for three additional six month periods upon the expiration of the original six months.

Another change of importance to the employee is that now he is given access to the reports of medical examinations by the employers physician. A change of importance to small employers is that previously if the employer had eight or more employees he must come under the act. The new amendments change this provision to four employees. Increases similar to those in the Workmen's Compensation Act were made in the benefits available to unemployed under the Unemployment Compensation Act. Previously those having no dependents received a maximum of $20 per week while those having dependents received an additional $2 per week for each dependent up to a maximum of four dependents. Under the new amendments, unemployed persons with no dependents will receive $24 per week, while those having dependents will receive an additional $2 per week for each dependent up to four.

The legislature made certain other minor changes designed to improve the administration of the act. The entire Unemployment Compensation Act will be studied by a special joint committee of the Senate and House of Representatives between now and the date the 1951 legislature meets. The act was originally rushed through the legislature in a one-day special session held on the last day of 1938 in order to comply with time limitations set up by the Federal Social Security Act which granted financial aid to the states to carry out the program. The law has been the subject of rather extensive amendments at every succeeding general session of the legislature with the result that it has grown like "topsy". It is expected that the legislative study committee will consult with both labor and management, as well as the administrators of the act, and will either draft extensive amendments or a complete revision to offer the 1951 Legislature.

(The next article in the series will treat legislation having to do with the Old Age Assistance Law.)

Dick Dawson was taken to Ann Arbor to the hospital last week to have his arm attended to.

Ten Teams Now Entered For Third Annual Canoe Race

Ten teams have now completed their entry list and filed the same with ten dollar fee. Canoe Marathon Officials announced today.

The first team to enter was Allen, 22, and Bertrand Cobb, 19, both of Toledo, Ohio, the second team was Ted Engle, 19, of Grayling and Gordon Wellman, 20, of Port Huron. The third entries were Curtis Brink, 19, and Harold Leobitzke, 38, both of Vanderbit. Fourth entries were Otto DeGraff, 25, of Port Lauderdale, Florida, and Robert Marin, 23, of Pontiac. The fifth team entered were Hugo Wojahn, 36, and John Wojahn, 41, brothers of Tawas City and East Tawas respectively. The sixth entries were Walter Funk, 19, and Seth Ware, 22, both of Detroit. John E. Kellogg, 41, and Robert J. Kellogg, 34, both of Lovells were the seventh team entered and the only Crawford County team yet registered for the race.

Last year's champions who cut over an hour from the previous mark and also victors in this year's short spurt race on the Thunder Bay River from Hillman to Alpena were the eighth team entered. Frank Bissonette, 24, and Hugh Bissonette, 21, both of Oscoda are favored again to take first place in the Third Annual Canoe Marathon from Grayling to Oscoda. Victory in the 240 mile long grueling course is emblematic of the championship of the State of Michigan in canoeing.

The ninth team to be entered in the race's starting lists were Robert J. Fullerton, 23, and Edward J. DuMont, 26, both of Oscoda who placed third in last year's contest behind the champions and Jay Stephan of Grayling and Ted Engle of Grayling who topped second. The last team entered to date are Robert Rego, 18, and Alfred Rego, 21, both of Toledo, Ohio.

The Kellogg brothers, the only local entries to date, placed in eighth place last year. However, several local teams have been practicing hard all summer and their entries along with a host of others is expected in before the deadline Saturday midnight, September 10.

As the list of entries is completed by Race Secretary Robert Strong here and okayed by General Chairman Ray Snider, they will be forwarded on to Bay City to Frank Davis, manager of the Eastern Michigan Tourist Association. At the Tourist Association's Log Office under the direction of Mr. Davis, impartial persons will draw starting positions for the entered teams. It will be done on a lottery basis and every team will have an equal opportunity for position.

Grayling Chamber of Commerce directors have been hard at work the past few days arranging their end of the affair which includes Graylings share of the race expense as well as a briefing luncheon for the contestants.

Ernie Borchers, who again this year will act as Starting Chairman has been getting his group lined up to again send the canoes of the teams off in 5 second intervals for the 240 mile stretch ahead.

On Friday night, Chairman Snider, Secretary Strong, Starting Chairman Borchers and Committee member John Peterson will attend a final meeting on the race at Mio. There all last minute problems will be decided and all plans set for the race.

Entries during the final days before this Saturday deadline is expected to again swell the starting number to around the 50 team mark. All entered teams will be out to halt the Bissonette brothers in their try for a second win while no doubt, the champions from Oscoda will be out to cut their winning time of last year down again as they glide under the US-23 bridge at Oscoda in sight of the blue waters of Lake Huron.

Special Services To Be Held at St. Mary's Church

A Mission will be held at St. Mary's Church beginning on Sunday, September 11th, and ending on Sunday, September 18th. The Reverend Father Mark Van Gorp, from Kansas City, Missouri, will conduct the exercises of the Mission. Father Gorp, who served as a military chaplain during the last war has had much experience in the preaching of Missions. Masses will be said each week day morning during the Mission at 6:00 and 7:30. Evening services will be held each evening at 7:30.

A Mission is defined as a series of sermons and other spiritual exercises conducted under the leadership of a priest who is experienced in Mission work for the purpose of renewing fervor in a Parish. A Mission serves to remind us that our destiny is heaven and that the salvation of the soul is the most important job we have to perform in life. The sermon topics of a Mission are especially chosen for meditation on these and related subjects.

Forty Hours Devotions, a service in honor of Our Lord Jesus Christ present in the Sacrament of Holy Eucharist, will be held in St. Mary's Church on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, the 18th, 19th and 20th of September. This devotion will follow the Mission and will likewise be conducted by Father Van Gorp.

The public is cordially invited by Father Breitenstein, pastor of St. Mary's Church, to attend the exercises of both the Mission and the Forty Hours Devotions.

Indies Split In 1949 Finale

The Grayling Independents split with a win and loss in their Labor Day action as the grand finale of the 1949 baseball season that saw them again repeat as regular champions and playoff champions of the North Central Michigan Baseball League.

They were defeated by the Midland V. F. W. nine here on Sunday for their second loss of the season, 10 to 2. The only other loss on their roster was a defeat by Comins there in regular season play. On Labor Day, Grayling took the measure of the Roscommon Shamrocks there by a 6 to 4 count.

Tinker, star Midland hurler struck out 11 Grayling batters and gave up three bases on balls and 8 hits while Leo Granger hurling for Grayling struck out 7 and walked 1 while being touched for 13 hits.

Midland started right out with three runs in the initial inning and added one more in each of the sixth and seventh innings and piled on 5 more in the final stanza. Grayling scored once in the first and once in the last inning. Max Niederer, Granger and Bob Gildner each connected for two hits while Bernie Sadjak and Elmer Kellogg each added a base blow. One of Grangers pokes went for a double in the first inning.

At Roscommon on Labor Day Elmer Kellogg who has done a fine job of managing the Indies this year, took the mound and whiffed 10 Shamrock batters while giving up 8 hits and walking 3. Earl Haight who tossed for Roscommon struck out 5, issued 2 walks and was tagged for 9 hits. Six Roscommon errors to the Indies 3 misplays spelled a lot of difference.

Granger led the Grayling team with 2 hits, both triples, one coming in the third and the other in the fifth inning. Sadjak and Bob Hanson also hit safely twice. Clyde Anthony, Ross Thompson and Kellogg each added a base hit.

The Indies have a fine record to look back on for the '49 baseball season and Manager Kellogg and the rest of the team wished the Avalanche to pass on a word of thanks to those who financially and morally supported the team all season. The fans really aided Grayling win the double title for the second straight year, they said. The scheduled "Old Timer's" game which was to follow the regular Grayling-Roscommon contest was not played as the Grayling "Old Timer's" were not represented. The Roscommon oldsters played several innings among themselves.

Call Polio Epidemic Drive

Confidence that the entire community would give whole-hearted support to the Polio Epidemic Emergency Drive was expressed today by George Burk, chairman of the Crawford County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The Drive announced Wednesday by Basil O'Connor, National Foundation president, is being held as a last resort because "in no other way can the National Foundation continue to aid increased numbers of polio patients without slowing up scientific research and professional education," he said.

It is the first emergency drive in the history of the fight against polio in the United States.

"Although we've been spared the scourge of death from polio this year, all of us are eager to join in providing help for those who are now feeling its impact," Mr. Burk said. "So far, our chapter has had to spend little money for new cases here. Our March of Dimes funds are being paid out for treatment of local patients afflicted in previous years. If new cases developed, we'd have to request additional funds from national headquarters, as so many other chapters are now doing. We want to be sure they would be forthcoming."

"Everyone in the country is supporting the fight against polio so that full help will be available wherever and whenever it is needed."

Contributions from Crawford County to the Polio Epidemic Emergency Drive are one way of returning the generosity of other givers throughout the nation whose help has made or will make it possible to take care of polio cases here, Mr. Burk said.

"Even in time of great sorrow, such as a polio epidemic can cause, this spirit of co-operative giving is a heart-warming thing," Mr. Burk said. "Crawford County's dimes are really marching now."

National Guard Exhibit Shown At State Fair

The Michigan National Guard will have a major exhibit at the Centennial State Fair at Detroit this week in addition to playing a prominent part in other fair activities.

The 177th Field Artillery Battalion of Detroit fired a 19-gun salute as Governor Williams officially inaugurated the Centennial Exposition Friday noon. Detroit units of the Michigan National Guard will participate in the opening day parade. Brig. General Harold T. Weber, Royal Oak, is in charge of the National Guard exhibit, assisted by Lt. Colonel Kenneth Larkey, 46th Division Artillery headquarters, Detroit.

Featured exhibit will be a $12,000 animated display, originally prepared for the Chicago Air Fair, demonstrating the defense potentialities of the Air National Guard. A-26 and F-80 aircraft will be seen providing a realistic air cover for metropolitan centers. This exhibit will be in a booth beneath the grandstand.

The balance of the National Guard exhibit will cover more than 60,000 square feet near the Woodward Avenue entrance. A military assembly tent, 40 feet by 80-feet, will house technical exhibits including radar display. Surrounding the tent will be materiel of National Guard equipment including tanks, armored cars, howitzers, mortars and machine guns. Liaison and fighter aircraft will be on display.

School's Open!

DRIVING or WALKING

TAKE IT EASY

A statewide safety campaign aimed at protecting Michigan's children returning to school this week and next is highlighted by above poster. Michigan schools and police chiefs have received 2,500 of the varnished posters from Automobile Club of Michigan. The Club also distributed 2,500 copies of another poster, "Watch Out For Kids," in cooperation with Michigan's state and local police.

All drivers and children returning to school are reminded that the first week of school, when safe walking habits must be relearned, is most dangerous for children in the whole year, according to Auto Club's safety and traffic director Ernest P. Davis. In 1940, 78 Michigan children aged 5 to 14 years were killed in traffic accidents.

GROWTH OF POLIO CARE TEAM

1938

Medical care for polio patients is costing the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis more money than ever before—because better treatment is available today than formerly, as the accompanying chart reveals. Until 1938 when the National Foundation was formed, a physician and a nurse usually comprised the best available care. Today, modern polio treatment may include 13 specialized services, provided by an entire TEAM of professional workers. This expanded care has cost National Foundation Chapters millions in March of Dimes funds. More money is needed immediately to continue these services. Support the POLIO EPIDEMIC EMERGENCY DRIVE to help care for today's polio patients. Send your contribution now to POLIO, care of your local Post Office.

Polio Foundation Asks Dimes and Dollars Now to Pay for Patient Care in Epidemic of Infantile Paralysis Throughout Country

With thousands of children and adults in hospitals today as the result of current widespread polio epidemics, and with as many new cases likely to develop in the months just ahead, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis has launched a Polio Epidemic Emergency Drive to provide immediate funds for patient care.

The price-tag on this year's epidemic will be so enormous, according to Basil O'Connor, National Foundation President, that $14,500,000 must be raised to meet the national polio bill. During 1948, when there were 27,908 cases in the country, the highest number since the record total in 1916, the National Foundation and its Chapters spent $17,000,000 in March of Dimes funds to provide epidemic services, he said. With even more cases this year, it looks as though it may cost $25,000,000 in 1949 to pay for that part of medical and hospital care which families cannot pay themselves.

By the end of August, as much money had been advanced in epidemic aid to National Foundation Chapters whose March of Dimes funds have been exhausted by the cost of care as was sent in all of 1948. The nation's total number of cases now is as large as a full year's toll in previous years, with predictions for at least double that number before December 31.

Furthermore, it is estimated that a minimum of $5,000,000 will be required to continue helping 1948 patients who still need clinic or hospital treatment. The National Foundation gives assistance as long as medical care is necessary, regardless of age, race, creed or color. The money raised in the Polio Epidemic Emergency Drive will be used exclusively for services to polio patients in all states, Mr. O'Connor said. Contributions may be mailed to POLIO, care of your local Post Office. "This emergency drive is our only hope of providing care for patients without slowing up scientific research and professional education programs of the National Foundation," Mr. O'Connor explained. "It is an ironical fact that this heavy incidence,

U-M Professor Says Newspaper Ads Best

Ann Arbor—Newspaper advertising is probably the most useful type of advertising for the small manufacturer, with local radio, direct mail, and posters serving local markets also, a University of Michigan specialist in marketing believes.

J. Howard Westing, associate professor of marketing, discusses means of consumer advertising for the small manufacturer in an article published in the Michigan Business Review. The Review is a bi-monthly publication of the University Bureau of Business Research.

"The outstanding advantage of the newspaper for a small manufacturer is that its coverage can be made to approximate closely the market for the product," Professor Westing explains. "One may argue that radio is equally ideal in its advertising effect, but the fact remains that most dealers think of the newspaper as the local supporting medium. This dealer attitude is particularly important to a small manufacturer because his brands can sell well against the competition of well-known brands only if the dealer gives them active local support."

Radio has made tremendous progress as an advertising medium, but it is most successful for products which are bought frequently, at a fairly low price, and without a great amount of advance planning on the part of the buyer, Professor Westing points out. For this reason radio is dominant in the advertising of food and drug products but is still outstripped by newspaper and other types of printed advertising for products requiring anything except the briefest selling arguments.

Direct mail advertising and outdoor posters are particularly useful to the small businessman, Professor Westing says, because they can be tailored to fit any need.

Dollars Go Farther - But

A short time ago, the New York Herald Tribune published a series of articles dealing with the drop in food prices that have occurred since last year. It took the prices charged by one of the large chain systems as its yardstick. It found that butter declined 21 per cent, meat 21 per cent, eggs 23 per cent, cheese 22 per cent, and so on down a list of staple commodities.

Prices in most other lines have also shown substantial declines. Clothes, appliances, dry goods—in almost every case they are well down from the highs that were reached after the war, when demand outran supply by a wide margin, and "easy money" was prevalent.

The factors that have caused the drops in prices are many. One of the most important is retail competition. The chain store system, which was the Herald Tribune's yardstick, has to compete for business with all the other chains and all the other independents operating in the area it serves. Price-conscious consumers soon learn where the best buys are to be had, and act accordingly.

This is true of every kind of store, dealing in every kind of consumer goods. Price reductions on the wholesale and manufacturing levels are soon translated into price reductions at the retail level. Greater efficiency and economy in store operation likewise lead to lower figures on the price tags. That is why our dollars, shrunken as they still are by perwar standards, are going farther now.

But such factors as competition and progressive retailing practices that bring prices down should not blind consumers to economic reality. Costs are high. Profit margins, especially in retailing, have been reduced to the vanishing point. And the inflationary danger of a rising government debt is returning. If wages and other costs move upward in the path of inflation, retail prices will follow. That is inevitable.

Chairman John J. Kozaren and Commissioner Dave Martin of the liquor commission, and James D. Dotsch, executive director of Table Top, will be the speakers. Other guests will include M. A. Laliberte, executive secretary of the liquor control commission; Seth Whitmore, organizational director of Table Top; and public officials of several northern Michigan counties.

Tickets are now being distributed and reservations will be limited to 175 persons.

Social Security Sometimes Lost

If a worker over 65, or a relative of a worker who has died, asks for information about possible payments from social security, the best advice you can give him is to write or call at the nearest office of the Social Security Administration as soon as possible, William E. LaRock, manager of the Traverse City social security office, stated today.

"Benefits are frequently lost because no application is filed within three months after they become available," Mr. LaRock said. "In most cases the reason for the delay is that some friend gives incorrect information to the potential beneficiary which leads him to believe that it would be useless, or not to his advantage, to apply for social security payments."

Mr. LaRock explained that both eligibility for benefits and the amount of the payments are governed by such factors as the worker's age, wages, type of em-

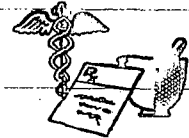

Contestants entered in the Third Annual Canoe Championship race, September 17-18, a 240-mile, non-stop paddling marathon from Grayling, through Mio, to the finish line at Oscoda, will find there's more to this outdoor event than "just plain paddlin'". There are six power dams, the Mio, Alcona, Loud, Five Channels, Cook- and Foote Dams, that will require portaging—and all but the last, during the night. However, there will be race officials and plenty of people around to "steer" the boys over the best portage route. (Above) the Bissonette brothers, Frank and Hugh, of Oscoda are pictured above as they came in for a portage at the Foote Dam. The Bissonettes, winners of last year's event, and the 1949 Thunder Bay River Canoe Race, are highly-favored to retain their title in the 1949 Michigan canoe classic. ployment, and the number and relationship of his dependents. Since these factors are different for each worker, information about benefits must be based on the individual situation, and what may be true for one person may not be correct for another. For example, some workers must work for 40 calendar quarters, or 10 years, to be permanently insured under the law, while others can be qualified with only six quarters of employment covered by social security.

"We urge all workers to write or call at our office at 107 S. Union S., in Traverse City within three months after their 65th birthday," Mr. LaRock said. "Relatives of workers who die should also check with us within three months of the date of death, in order to be sure that none of the social security benefits are lost."

SHOOT STORIES

Great Man

By Richard Hill Whitman

IF PROFESSOR AARON CHESWICK was famous he was not aware of this fact. He was too busy with his experiments in the field of chemistry, with teaching the undergraduates of Mapleridge College the rudiments of elementary science, with writing papers and books in which he set forth (in an almost apologetic style) the results of his experiments, and with reading avidly the works of such great scientists as Mons. Olliver Davillier and Senor Alfredo Valle Indan, both of whom had long ago won his respect and admiration.

He was an unpretentious looking little man, this Professor Cheswick, with pale blue eyes and horn-rimmed glasses and a pasty complexion. He wasn't one to attract attention or to assert himself. He went about with a perpetual far-away look in his eyes.

There came a time when a problem presented itself that challenged his skill and knowledge. He labored over it for days. The days became weeks and the weeks months. At last, worn and haggard, the little man was ready to admit defeat.

Time after time he returned to it, only to find himself defeated. He visited every library within miles, read every book by Davillier and Indan, as well as other great scientists that was available, but without finding the answer.

In the end Professor Cheswick had an idea. It was summer. He needed a vacation. Why not take a month-off, visit Europe and perhaps call on Davillier and Indan and ask them personally to clear up the matter that so burdened his mind?

A week later Professor Cheswick sailed for France. The little school teacher was a lonely figure. He struck up a few acquaintances. He wasn't the type to attract people. But he enjoyed the trip. This was something he had never done before.

He was glad when the boat docked. Eagerly he looked ahead to his meeting with Mons. Davillier. But alas! The next day Professor Cheswick learned that Mons. Davillier had gone to America for his summer holiday and was not expected to return for another month.

The little scientist was depressed and disappointed. His time was short. Madrid, where lived Senor Indan was a long way off. Yet it could be reached, he thought suddenly and excitedly, by plane in a very short while.

HE WAS DELIGHTED to learn that Senor Indan was in Madrid. Yes, it was difficult to obtain an interview with the great man. He was constantly being pressed for interviews. What was it the American wanted to see him about? A problem? Ah, yes, Senor Indan was requested to solve so many problems. It was very, very doubtful if he would grant an interview for such a slight matter. However, if the American would care to take his chances, Senor Indan was to appear at a reception on Tuesday night. Possibly there would be an opportunity to ask his question.

Professor Cheswick attended the reception. He stood in line for hours, a quiet, unassuming, unimportant looking little man, waiting for his chance to speak to the great Senor Indan. It came at last. At last the Mapleridge school teacher and scientist stood before the man he respected more than anyone else in the world.

He was so overcome by awe that for a moment he just stared. Senor Indan frowned impatiently and Professor Cheswick found his voice. He stated his question. The Senor's brows arched in surprise.

"An unusual question, Senor," he said. "Frankly, I cannot answer it. There is only one man in the world with enough knowledge and learning to find the answer. He is one of your own countrymen. My good friend Mons. Davillier is at this moment in America seeking an interview with this wizard whom the whole scientific world respects and admires, yet who is so absorbed in his work that it is difficult to persuade him to appear in public. I refer to Professor Aaron Cheswick of Mapleridge College."

Health NEWS

Correct Posture

Like to feel better, look handsomer, have your clothing fit you better and have more pep? Here's a simple bit of advice that may help you: Maintain a correct posture, whether standing, sitting or lying down.

A national magazine recently commented on the numerous "muscle-building" schools which have gained popularity due to wartime emphasis on health. The medical profession stresses that over-developed muscles do not necessarily mean perfect health and recommends exercises contingent upon the individual's general condition.

However, Beckett, Howarth,
M.D., of New York, recently pointed out in an article in the Journal of the American Medical Association how correct posture can improve health. A check on the following pointers, as listed by this doctor of medicine will tell you whether or not your posture habits are all they should be:

In standing, keep the body vertical and straight, with chest erect but not fully expanded or tense.
The abdomen should be flat and neither sagging nor retracted. Forget the old advice to "throw back your shoulders." The shoulders should rest comfortably on the chest and the body should achieve its full height in this position with the head and chin level and not tipped back.

You should sit with the head erect and centered over the pelvis or tilted slightly forward. Sit slightly arched with the hips and knees flexed at a right angle.

Avoid a sagging bed. It allows the muscles and ligaments of the upper part of the body to relax,
but stretches those on the opposite side and tends to distort the abdominal organs and chest.

If you follow these rules your work shouldn't tire you so quickly and you may avoid a lot of aches and pains.

TALL TIMBER TALES

BY PETE

Well, here it is September eighth, the kids are back in school and we're getting rested up from our vacation. Even if you had to stay on the job, you get a lift from those who were able to "get away from it all," for a few days or weeks and visit some favorite spots in north Michigan. Just where "the North begins" is a matter of anybody's opinion. Some have to drive quite a spell, but to others it's as soon as you leave your own city limits. Those who went, spent a lot of money, and it was probably worth it. Money is a fleeting thing, it's memories we hang on to. Some can remember the places they visited as they looked 50 or 60 years ago, the fish
they caught, the trails they tramped through the tall timber to get to a favorite lake or stream, the experiences they had. They are a part of the unwritten history of Michigan, and have their place in her lore.

Here's a thin faced youth of seventeen or eighteen sitting on the deacon seat in a lumber camp
at about the turn of the century, telling about a fishing trip he made to Houghton Lake when there was a lumber building site on the south shore, a landmark to the old-timer. It was a sort of ingly strums a $1.98 guitar and tells his story in rhyme, as his pals gather round.

"Oh, we went down to Houghton
Lake to spear some fish at night
The fat pine on our fishing
jack gave out the brightest light
I tried to spear a sucker, stone roller and redhorse . . . Because I couldn't hit ne'er one I felt a great remorse . . . When we got up to the boarding house I had myself a time . . . I started in to cousin-up to a gal named Emaline . . . I was nicely getting started-in when coming through the door . . . I saw a little gentleman six feet high or more . . . He gave me a dirty look sat down beside the girl . . . He put his arms around her and said she was his pearl . . .
I began to hitch away, I was a little scared . . . I could feel my heart a bumpin' and the rising of my hair . . .

I walked a little circle . . . I was sizing up the lad . . . His name was Jimmie Currens, and a fightin' he was bad . . . I started then to leave the room . . . A little faster than a walk . . . When I got out where my pals were, my face was white as chalk . . .

"Now says my pals . . . you are a little shy . . . If you'd tackle Jimmie Currens . . . You could lick 'im if you try . . . So I go up in front of the house and you'd ought to hear me roar . . . When I saw that Jimmie didn't want to come out of the door . . . Now come to think it would be quite a shock . . .
If Jimmie had of come on out and cleaned my little clock . . .
But as it is, in future generations
and I think it's fair enough . . .
They'll read on history's pages . . .
How I run a darn good bluff . . ."
